NATIONALLY RECOGNISED
TRAINING

BSB50215 - Diploma of Business

Convert your skills to a Diploma of Business via RPL today and make your transition into the civilian world easier.

The CLET BSB50215 Diploma of Business is a great qualification to help transfer your police, military, or emergency services skills into a nationally recognised qualification that is easily understood by civilian employers.

Although it may not seem appropriate at first, defence, police, and emergency services are all businesses that run with Government funding and have to allocate resources accordingly. They need to service their client base and ensure operational demands are met. These are all the elements of a business.

If you are a current or former member of the police, military or emergency services, or have other unique employment experience, let the CLET RPL Team assess your skills against the BSB50215 Diploma of Business and start the journey towards civilian employment.

Obviously, the BSB50215 Diploma of Business is also of benefit to anyone with a business background without specialist training, and the CLET RPL Team can assist here too.

Click on the following headings to learn more about the CLET recognition of prior learning (RPL) process.

Who is eligible to apply for RPL?

CLET specialises in providing recognition of prior learning (RPL) to people who are current or former police, military, emergency services, nursing and all other government at all levels. WHY? Because that is where our workplace knowledge, experience and education is focused and current.

RPL assessment is obligation free

The RPL assessment process is 'free of charge' and 'obligation free'. You only pay the RPL fee if you wish to be awarded with your qualification/s and receive the certificate/s after the assessment process is complete and you are advised of the result. We do this in recognition of the impeccable work you have done for our community.

When RPL form is submitted

After you complete the RPL Assessment form, evidence to support your knowledge and skills is required. When this is received, CLET staff will commence the initial review of your experience against the criteria of one or more qualifications. On the application form you may elect the qualification/s you wish to be assessed against or ask for a general assessment.

1. The more evidence you provide that is relevant against the qualification/s criteria you wish to be assessed against, the easier it is for CLET staff to be confident you possess the knowledge and skills required.
2. If required, a competency conversation may be conducted over the phone
